

ARE YOU A PARENT?

Are you wondering how to handle your child's challenging behavior?

The New York University Child Study Center is currently recruiting parents of children ages 3-8 to participate in a 10-week research study that is examining the effectiveness of parenting classes. The parenting group will start in September and meet once a week for two hours.

Classes cover:

Effective Discipline

Setting Limits

Use of Praise and Rewards

Handling Misbehavior in Public

These evening classes are a relaxed, fun and hands-on program for parents who want help with their child's misbehavior. Groups are led by two clinical psychologists who will provide plenty of individual attention. There is a small fee for each group; however, there will be five occasions where parents will be compensated for filling out a questionnaire.
